

SoCompetent: Employment between individuals

Animatrice

“SoCompetent is a simple idea, but one that we need to think about. In 2006, 5 friends decided to create a website where people can offer their skills and expertise, and others will have the possibility to use or hire them. A kind of classifieds system for small jobs, of which Stéphane Retterer-Maspero is one of the creators.”

Stéphane Retterer-Maspero

“We believed that we all have within us, the skills to build this, whatever our level of experience or age, being a man, woman, retiree, student or employee. So we started with the principle that it was inconceivable that in our era there is not a free job platform that allows people to emphasize and use their skills. We connect people, offering or seeking a job, through ads on the site. These listings are categorized by field of activity: home, early childhood health, etc. And each individual can specify their level (beginner, intermediate, expert), their location and availability.

For example we have nannies, childcare professionals, craftsmen, masons, carpenters, DJs who work weddings and other parties, nurses, retirees who provide tutoring... well, we really have a panel that represents all classes of people, whatever their level and whatever their 'seniority'.”

An RCF column directed in partnership with the BNP Paribas Foundation.